

Lord Immanuel S. Juanich, MDC-OJT WEEKLY JOURNAL

Week 10, day 1 (March 10, 2025)

-On this day, I wanted the approach of fetching all in one fetch so I continued on fixing the error, `FormatException`, and it's harder than I thought it would be. Tried all and luckily, made it work. Tried also couple of times to check if the error is still there but there's none. So, the only problem I got now is the previewing the pdf since it isn't showing.

Week 10, day 2 (March 11, 2025)

-On this day, I checked the fixed error yesterday, but, I thought it was fixed but still there. So, I change the approach that I tried last friday, the pagination, but in different style, and at the end of the day, it's done.

Week 10, day 3 (March 12, 2025)

-On this day, I had issues in using this kind of pagination, so I tried the other one like in the desktop that has a numbers for pages. But it's so messy and consume space in the UI so I went back to the main pagination.

Week 10, day 4 (March 13, 2025)

-On this day, I continued on working the pagination where it only displays limited. So I tried to fetch it all while maintaining the pagination but ends up having the same error that I stucked before. Instead, I went to fetch the first 100 legal opinions in the first page and displays it after while fetching the remaining legal opinions. But, the search query isn't working due to it only matches what it is being displayed or fetched on. So I got stuck for a while.

Week 10, day 5 (March 14, 2025)

-On this day, I'm fixing the fetching the legal opinions through each of the legal opinions. Tried as many ways as possible but it's not working. So to consume my time properly, I'm fixing first the previewing of the pdf but saw some lacking views that there's only reference and date and no category. So, I included it.